UCLA School of Nursing

June 2017 Issue

June is always a busy and exciting time here at the UCLA School of Nursing as many of our students find themselves planning the next steps in their professional careers.

225 of our students from the PhD, Master's (APRN and MECN) and Bachelor's programs received their well-earned degrees this past Saturday at the illustrious

Royce Hall. Antonia Villarruel, dean of the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing, was the keynote speaker and shared inspirational remarks.

At the end of the ceremony, the graduates recited the International Pledge for Nurses and graduate Isaac Montoya led the entire audience in an 8-clap while simultaneously recording them with his Snapchat Spectacles.

The entire commencement was livestreamed and is available here.

We are so proud of the achievements of the Class of 2017 and look forward to hearing about their future accomplishments!

"Your Word!"
Joe/Jane Bruin!

One Word. It's a simple concept. Tell us one word that describes the UCLA School of Nursing experience to you. Just one word can make a difference and tell a story... your story.

One Gift. It's a simple concept. Make one gift to the Annual Fund in honor of what the UCLA School of Nursing means to you. Just one gift can make a difference and give future students the chance to forge their own stories and create their own path.
